

This is a detailed aerial map of a forested landscape, likely a national park or a large-scale land management area. The map features a complex network of roads and trails, many of which are highlighted in blue. A prominent river flows through the center of the map, with several smaller streams and tributaries branching off. Various land parcels are outlined in blue, and some of these parcels are filled with a pink color, indicating specific areas of interest or management. The map also shows a large, irregularly shaped area outlined in pink, which could be a designated zone or a specific land parcel. The overall terrain is rugged and forested, with some areas showing signs of human activity, such as roads and buildings. The map is oriented with North at the top, and the river flows generally from the top towards the bottom right. The pink outlines are used to delineate specific land parcels or zones, while the blue outlines represent the general road and trail network. The map is a high-resolution aerial photograph with overlaid vector data, providing a clear view of the landscape and its features.
